

Name: Max Dehne

Courses Taught:

Boston Architectural College

2015 - Current

Actively working as an adjunct professor teaching two different studios at the graduate level. This requires me to create curriculum, design assignments and teach weekly in a studio environment.

Educational Credentials:

Rhode Island School of Design Graduated 2013 Masters of Architecture

Portland State University

Graduated 2009

Bachelors of Architectural Design

Teaching Experience: Downcity Design Teaching 2012 - Current

Professional Experience:

Freelance Designer 2015-present

Currently operate a freelance design business focused on a variety of projects ranging in architecture, graphic design, and packing design. These projects were completed under my companies name MaxwellDesign.

Naga LLC 2014 – 2015

As a member of NAGA Architecture Boston, I worked with a team of designers who handled the early pre-concept to design development work for a variety of residential and commercial mixed-use projects. I was responsible for generating schematic designs, visualization for skin systems, detailed plan concepts, and creating early revit implementation.

Lacuna Design 2013 – 2014

While working at Lacuna Design, I completed architectural drawing sets, marketing material for potential clients, and architectural renderings for a variety of commercial and residential projects, including a high-rise penthouse in Providence, a boutique office renovation, and a high-end condominium fit out.