

Terry Duffy, MLA'13
Operations Manager | Christie Dustman & Company

Terry is a lifelong student of ornamental horticulture, leaving no aspect unexplored. He started working in a florist and garden nursery at age twelve, and has continued to thrive in the industry ever since. Terry brings decades of experience to Christie Dustman & Company.

Terry grew up on Long Island, NY, moving to Rockport, MA, in 1989. There, he and his wife opened a small flower shop and greenhouse operation, which eventually evolved into a full-service landscape business. Along the way, Terry developed an expertise in rooftop planters and rainwater capture and reuse systems, well ahead of the ecological curve.

Before working with Christie Dustman & Company, Terry was the lead designer for Weston Nurseries, where he designed a public garden in Chelmsford that received several Garden Club Federation awards, including the prestigious William C. Welch Award. In 2012, he began teaching Advanced Design and Vectorworks at the Boston Architectural College (BAC) while pursuing a Master of Landscape Architecture degree, which he earned in 2013.

Terry brings all of his varied horticultural expertise to the Christie Dustman team, as well as a well-honed logistical aptitude. He manages the field operations and partners with the design team to install new plantings while providing technical assistance on a myriad of topics. Terry is a renaissance man of the Green Industry.

Terry's mantra is: "Gardens are the art in which we live."
